

NCUA: A Career Worth Exploring

GENERAL COUNSEL

The Office of General Counsel

The National Credit Union Administration (NCUA) is a federal agency responsible for chartering and regulating nearly 3,000 federal credit unions and insuring more than $1.5 trillion of deposits in more than 5,000 federal and state-chartered credit unions.

Why the NCUA?

The NCUA protects the safety and soundness of the credit union system by identifying, monitoring and reducing risks to the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund. Backed by the full faith and credit of the United States, the Share Insurance Fund provides up to $250,000 of federal share insurance to more than 117 million account holders.

The NCUA works closely with the federal banking agencies, and state financial regulators. The agency plays a role in helping to ensure broader financial stability as a member of the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council and the Financial Stability Oversight Council. The NCUA engages with members of Congress on proposed legislation and other areas of interest.

Key strategic areas include advancing technology initiatives, such as FinTech alternatives, and maximizing automation within the NCUA's role as a regulator and insurer.

At the NCUA, differences make a difference. We value diversity of perspectives and backgrounds and are committed to building an inclusive work environment where employees can contribute to their fullest potential.
